Dr. Lee also drew attention to the 1882 Fantin-Latour portrait of "Mme. Henri Lerolle" and the monumental "Adoration of the Magi" painted by Guido Reni in the early 1640s. The Reni painting, approximately twelve by eight feet, is the largest old master oilpainting in the Cleveland collection.

New free form music, UPI news for WRUW

The campus radio station begins its spring semester programming today at 3 p.m. after two weeks off the air.

Unformatted music shows are scheduled, a change from last semester's block jazz, folk, or rock programs. David Morris, WRUW-FM student general manager, explained that the switch is basically an experiment designed to fulfill the educational purpose of the station.

The "free form" music show will broaden listener interest, he said, the disc jockeys will come into contract with a greater variety of music.

The staff decided on unformatted programming at a meeting February 8, in the student union. John Cremer, station director, also outlined the major goals of the station:

"The primary purpose of WRUW-FM is to provide information and entertainment for the students and other members of the University community, and to the Cleveland community surrounding the University, through diverse programming not generally heard on the commercial media, reflecting the culture and interests of the student body and other members of the University Circle family."

According to Morris, the "free form" music show is only one change listeners will notice this semester. Expanded news coverage will be broadcast with the benefit of a new UPI teletype machine provided by the East Ohio Gas Company.

Jeff Secunda, WRUW news director, said that four minute Metro-Media news followed by short student broadcasts are set for 3 and 8 p.m. daily. A 15 minute news roundup will be heard at 11 p.m. nightly. Secunda added that the emphasis will be on campus issues and college news in general.

Weekly public affairs shows are also planned; both taped programs from the National Educational Network and shows produced by the station will be aired. The taped broadcasts include "Drum," dealing with Afro-American events, and a half hour Peter Sellers' comedy production from BBC.

WRUW will produce programs dealing with urban problems, CWRU issues and a weekly broadcast aimed at children.

Other station directors are Howard Sacha, program director; Steve Levitan, public affairs; Steve Rocky, associate general manager; and Fred Bayles, chief program engineer.

Thanks to the cooperation between the Junior and Senior Class Officers and others, the Junior-Senior Class has been able to sponsor three times as many activities in one semester as compared to previous activities before this year.

The Junior-Senior Class proposes the following activities for the spring semester: monthly T.G.I.F.'s with a band and beer, a dinner dance, a spring weekend with I.P.C. including a concert and boat trip, the New York

Ballet Company's presentation at Severance, a hay ride, a beach party, and "Colgate 13", being held February 20 at the Student Union.

Billy Preston

RONALD B. WEINSTOCK

Billy Preston is a young, talented keyboard man and singer who used to come out on the old Shindig show with the 'processed' hair, go to the organ and come off like Little Richard.

Shindig's part of the past, but Billy Preston sure isn't. For the past few years he has been working with The Genius, Ray Charles, and is in fact Charles' protege.

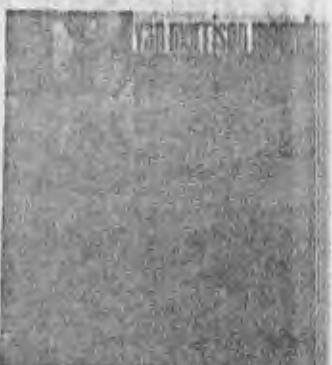

Anyway, on a tour with Charles, Preston got in touch with the Beatles and did some session work with them on "Get Back." And Apple was kind enough to record Mr. Preston for us. George Harrison produced this, and it is very fine.

Preston, as might be expected, shows much of Ray Charles in his work. However, his performances are generally quite good in their own right. In Ray Charles' recordings, a vocal chorus appears on much of the album! Often this can be banal, but it doesn't here.

"Morning Star" dates back W.C. Handy and, as Billy lay on with deep low piano and very tender but moving vocal

The album is very religious in its mood and is an affirmation of life. "Let Us All Get Together Right Now" is a message of love towards everything and the title "That's the Way God Plans It" is a prayer of thankfulness from Preston, thanking the Lord for making this world groovy and great as it is. The builds into a jam, as Preston runs organ lines, George Harrison responds with fire as a vocal chorus affirms: "That's the way God planned it, that's the way God wants it to be."

Hockey club skates to an easy victory

The Case Western Reserve Hockey Club has financial difficulties, but it won its game on Sunday. Gannon College fell to the Icemen by a score of 8 to 2.

The Icemen started scoring late in the first period and then built a sizeable lead before third period play. At the end of the second period the score was CWRU 4, Gannon 0. In the third period the Icemen put pressure onto the Gannon team by scoring early.

Gannon returned the compliment and scored its first goal of the game. CWRU scored 3 more goals before the final 5 minutes, and then Gannon scored the final goal of the game about 11 minutes into the third period. It was their second goal.

Scoring high for CWRU was Wayne Johnson, Case-Grad, with 3 goals. Bill Chepko Adelheit, was second with 2 goals. With one goal apiece came Mike Keenan, Case; Jim Krause, Med-Grad; and Ted King, Med-Grad.

Case is unbeaten on its home court

The Case Tech roughriders displayed a fine offensive attack Friday night in defeating a visiting Carnegie-Mellon basketball team, 70-55. All five Case starters hit in double figures for the ball game with Jim Givens leading the way with 20 tallies. With the score 36-35 in favor of Case at intermission it appeared that the Roughriders fans would witness a real cliff-hanger. However, the men of Coach Bill Sudeck came out like tigers in the second half and practically blew the CMU squad right out of the gym.

A polished offense and a stubborn defense by Case virtually eliminated the Tartans.

Case got fine performances from all of its starters. Rick Peindl hit for 13 points, while Jim Paulus and Brian Kupchik were strong around the backboards.

Case has not lost on its own court this season as it moves toward a winning campaign. The Roughriders next home contest will be Thursday night against the Gators of Allegheny College.

Reserve cagers play well but lose to John Carroll

The WRU Red Cats played probably their finest basketball game of the year in dropping a 78-72 PAC decision to the Blue Streaks of John Carroll University. Carroll, which stands in second place in the PAC, had its hands full Friday night as the Cats proved that they came to play basketball.

Reserve was in contention until the final buzzer but could never manage to pull away from the well-coached Blue Streaks.

The contest was tied for most of the first stanza until JCU spurred to an eight point lead with two minutes remaining. Reserve kept battling, however, and trailed by a 38-32 count at intermission.

JCU came out hustling in the second half and knotted the score on several occasions. The Cats battled the Streaks on even terms due to clutch shooting by Tom McClain, Ed Williams, and Tim Malik. However, Carroll's

Jim O'Brien bagged a pair of 28 foot set-shots with three minutes remaining and the Streaks never looked back. With Carroll up by four, the Cats could not manage to narrow the gap even though they did give the Streaks some anxious moments near the end of the contest.

The loss to Carroll could still not overshadow some fine efforts on the part of the Red Cat basketballers. Tom McClain played one of the finest games of his career as the 6 ft. 3 in. forward collected 20 points and 18 rebounds. Ed Williams was superb as an outside shooter as he bagged 16 markers. Louis Powell and Don Goodfellow put forth fine defensive efforts throughout the contest.

Tom Mullally was high man for JCU. The 6 ft. 6 in. center netted 21 points and grabbed 11 rebounds. Mullally received help from Jim O'Brien and Bob Dene with who collected 14 and 13 points respectively.

Flying corporation buys Piper airplane

During January the University Flying Corporation purchased a Piper Colt airplane for the use of its members.

The two seater trainer plane, white with red stripes, cost the corporation $3000. Payment will come from club dues.

Michael Wolf, president of the corporation, stated that the plane has a cruising speed of 115 miles per hour at 75% power.

Dr. Thompson, professor of engineering, has taken legal responsibility for the debt until their bank loan is paid. Thompson has been associated with the flying club for four years and helped found the separate flying corporation, whose purpose is to buy a plane.

The plane is equipped with one transmitter and one receiver, connected with their omnidirectional apparatus. The effective range of the 1961 Piper Colt is 890 miles, and it can, according to Wolf, be flown onto the shortest field in the country.

Mo... from Band

By JOHN KOTLER

Since the appearance of their first album, "From Big Milk," two years ago, The Band has slowly been emerging as a top power on the contemporary music scene.

Known primarily for their role as back up musicians for Bob Dylan, they suffered from a lack of identity as a group during the early period of their solo performances.

However, with their first album, The Band established its own style. Led by Garth Hudson's jagged organ playing, they created a unique sound which incorporated everything from the twang of a jews harp to jazz-influenced dissonance.

Since then, THE BAND has been pulled towards its own roots of country and rock. By their second album, they had come up with "The Sound" which combined ragtime jazz, country, folk, and rock. A variety of instruments including violin, trombone, clavinet, and mandolin created what could be called Accordion Rock.

The songs on this album deal not with the country, but also with the myth of the American past. In songs which speak about such things as the Civil War, unions, race tracks and women who will always take you back, they try to rediscover the wisdom which they believe existed sometime in America's rural history.

Record Reviews

Bland

By RONALD B. WEINSTOCK

Robert Calvin Bland has been one of the most successful post-war blues singers; floppy Blue Bland's career dates only the past two decades and along with B.B. King, Bland has maintained his popularity, which other's "Couldn't," among the black community.

Bland was part of a group of blues singers and musicians which included King, Junior Parker, Roscoe Gordon and Johnny Ace. After a stint in the Army, Bland began a successful recording career with Duke Records, for whom he still records, in 1954. Bland's career has been full of many big selling records, including "Turn On Your Love Light," "Cry, Cry, Cry," "Further On Up the Road" and "Stormy Monday Blues."

Charles Kell, in URBAN Blues, notes that Bland, along with B.B. King and Junior Parker, rates as today's most important blues performer. An article in a recent "Down Beat" Magazine (August 7, 1969) also had considerable praise for Bland. "Down Beat" called Bland the only singer since the late Billie Holiday that could be fully trusted.

Bland has been ignored by the blues revival for two reasons. He isn't an instrumentalist and his music is dirty sounding, not far removed from Southern blues.

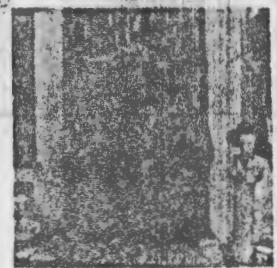

Too bad: Bland is such a mellow singer. He has a way with a ballad that other blues singers, B.B. King for example, don't have. Usually he is supported by a very fine band and rather imaginative arrangements. He's damn good.

Spotlighting the Man (Duke 89) is Bland's latest release and demonstrates Bland's merits very well. "Rockin' In the Same Old Boat" was his latest hit and Bland is more than adept at "standard" material such as "George" and "Who Can I Turn To," putting many well known pop singers to shame. It's good to have a Bobby Bland around to show us how good a singer can be.

the adverse circumstances under which the pirates have to operate. The sound balance is excellent, all instruments being audible, but no one voice overbearing the others. The recording was made in California during the Stones' recent U.S. tour.

Most of the songs are from the Stones two most recent albums. They offer no real surprises, but all of the expected and strong points of the Stones come shining through. On "Carol" and "Little Queenie" Keith Richards' guitar makes all the Chuck Berry cliches rock again. The album's finest cut is "Midnight Rambler." The aura of violence just crackles.

In summation, a must for Stones freaks, and a fine complement to "Let It Bleed". If you missed the Rolling Stones on tour just crank your teenage record player, put on this album, and you're there.
